

An invitation to artists

Global Artist Registry Foundation (GARF) — a Dutch non-profit foundation (stichting)

Your organisation has kindly agreed to pass this invitation on to its members. It is addressed to you as an artist.

GARF is building a permanent, non-commercial archival registry for artists' work, with a documented 100-year preservation plan. Registration is free for life for every ID-verified artist.

What a GARF archive gives you

- A permanent, structured record of your works: images, dimensions, materials, editions, provenance, exhibition history and catalogue references.
- Your own public artist page, with a unique artist identifier (GAR) and a unique identifier for every work (GAWID).
- Catalogue raisonné readiness — your documentation is organised to scholarly standards from the start.
- Secure cloud storage of your files, with export and download at any time.
- A verified profile, so museums, curators, galleries and researchers can rely on the record.

What this is — and what it is not

- Your work stays yours. You own everything in your GARF archive. GARF provides the archive; you own the content and can export or download it at any time.
- GARF is not a marketplace, dealer, agent or sales platform. It takes no commission and does not broker works.
- No membership data is involved. Your organisation has not shared your details with us — nothing about you reaches GARF unless you choose to register.
- Free for life for ID-verified artists. Identity verification exists only so that a record can be trusted for generations.

How to register

- Go to <https://globalartistregistry.org>, create an account, complete the ID verification step, and begin adding your works.
- You can start with a handful of works and build the archive over time; existing lists in Excel or CSV can be imported in one step, and a ready-made handover template is available inside your account if a gallery holds documentation on your behalf.
